

On the Mathematical Modelling of Linear Metabolic Networks

Galina Lyutskanova<sup>1</sup>, Svetoslav Markov<sup>2</sup>

<sup>1</sup> University of Sofia “Sv. Kl. Ohridski”

g.lyutskanova@gmail.com

<sup>2</sup> Bulgarian Academy of Sciences

smarkov@bio.bas.bg

Keywords: metabolic networks, enzymic reactions, mass action law

We consider metabolic networks of simple enzymatic reactions of V. Henri type. Applying the mass action law the reactions lead to a system of ordinary differential equations. For a linear chain of reactions we propose certain simplifications of the ODE system as well as a solution of the initial problem for the system. Some numerical examples are presented.

References

- [1] Kai Schallau and Bjorn H. Junker, Simulating Plant Metabolic Pathways with Enzyme-Kinetic Models, Plant Physiol. 152, 4, 1763–1771, 2010.
- [2] Ming Chen and Ralf Hofestdt, An Algorithm for Linear Metabolic Pathway Alignment, Silico Biology 5, 0013 (2004).
- [3] Evangelos Simeonidis, Stuart C.G. Rison, Janet M. Thornton, I. David L. Bogle and Lazaros G. Papageorgioua, Analysis of Metabolic Networks Using a Pathway Distance Metric through Linear Programming, Metabolic Engineering 5 (2003), 211–219.
- [4] N. Meslem, On the Local Stability of Irreversible and Reversible Linear Metabolic Pathways with Allosteric and Genetic Regulation, The International Federation of Automatic Control 16–18, 2013, Dec., Mumbai, India.